ENLARGING OF CITY PRISON IS BEING PLANNED

Addition of Woman's Department Must Be Made for New Municipal Court

COUNCIL MAKING PLANS

Definite Plans for New City Offices Hinge on Size of New Jail

Necessary enlargement of the city prison including the addition of a woman's department is one of the most important details in the work of rearranging Marion's municipal office rooms members of the city council building committee said today The new cells now in use will be inadequate after the municipal court begins operations when all of the prisoners formerly appearing in justice of the peace courts and placed in the county jail must be boarded by the city

Just how many additional cells will be needed to handle the increase still is a matter of conjecture and will probably be decided upon by the council committee after obtaining estimates from police department and justice court officials of the probable number of prisoners to be housed throughout the year

Separate Prison

Installation of a separate department for women prisoners at the city jail is imperative under the state law but only small quarters will be needed here where representatives of the fair sex in the past have constituted a very small percentage of the city jail population

Definite plans for the revised city office arrangement hinge largely upon the size of the new jail officials say

"Trud-e-e, Trud-e-e," Cries New York As Gertrude Walks Into U. S. Arms

BY DAVIS J WALSH

NEW YORK Aug 27—Gertrude Ederle who swam the English Channel and lived to laugh at its terrors and New York the home that gave her to the world of sport opened their arms to each other today and as though by tacit agreement fell into a fond embrace

Her eyes shining with the suspicion of tears her bosom heaving with the emotion of the great moment and her arms literally held wide as again she beheld the city of her birth Trudie came home on the Berengaria shortly after 12 30 o'clock this afternoon stepping ashore at the Battery to a demonstration such as would be thought incredible to those not fortunate enough to have beheld it

WHISTLES shrieked in the bay not until nets tormented cat drums heaped them to stop Bands flared with great fidelity on the accompanying canons men women and children stood in screaming thousands on the street as far as the eye could reach the windows and roofs of towering skyscrapers were thick with humanity sea planes cut didos overhead and racing hydroplanes cleft the waters of the bay with eccentric curves pleasure craft flag bedecked and loaded to the gunwales fought for places near the municipal tug Macom on which the girl of the hour day and year rode to the dock

A navy destroyer loaded on shrend and added its siren to the terrible din One knew that people were shouting and waving only because their mouths were opened and their lips moved It was the most delirious sight the writer hopes ever again to behold

41 BODIES ARE RECOVERED IN BLAST DEBRIS

Three More Pinioned Under Fallen Rock and Timber, Rescuers Believe

TRAGEDY AT CLYMER, PA.

Exact Cause of Explosion Unknown, Light Crew at Work

At the Mouth of Clymer Mine No 4, Clymer Pa, Aug 27—With recovery of nine additional bodies this afternoon, the known death toll of the disastrous explosion here reached forty one.

Leaders of the mine rescue crews believe three more bodies are pinioned under fallen rock and timber in the sections most seriously affected by the blast They hoped to reach those bodies before night

As the work of rescue crews became more complete, the belief prevailed among both mine officials and mine rescue experts that the final death toll will stand at forty four.

Exact circumstances of the explosions—there were two separate and distinct shocks—were unknown to both company officials and survivors of the catastrophe

All men working in the heading where the explosion occurred were killed and those who escaped were working so much farther back in the mine, which is of the drift type that they knew nothing of events leading up to the blasts.

There is no doubt, according to A J Moyer, vice president and general manager of the coal company, but that an accumulation of gas in the heading known as 'eight right,' was ignited causing the explosion, but, the manner in which the gas was ignited probably will always remain a mystery

Light Crew On

No open torch lights were used in the mine The company equipped all miners with electric cap lights as a precaution against such disasters, but mine experts said it is possible that a spark from an electric drill ignited the accumulated gas.

The disaster rocked the mine into yesterday when an unusually light crew was at work Normally from 400 to 500 miners are employed in the shaft

Many of the bodies recovered were horribly mangled, adding to the difficulty of identification In addition, the men's bodies were seared by the flames accompanying the blasts, between which about two minutes elapsed,

No undertaking establishment in Cl ver or nearby towns was large enough to accommodate the large number t dead so the coal company converted its machine shop about two and a half miles from the mine into an emergency morgue

The bodies were hauled to the surface in electric cars and were wrapped in burlap before they were transferred to ambulances sent here from a dozen nearby towns waited throughout the night and today at the mouth of the mine to carry the victims to the Clymer morgue

Dozen Crews Working

At the morgue a score of nurses and physicians from Indiana and Johnstown prepared the bodies for burial The e were so many victims that the medical staff was forced to obtain a truckload of new doors and carpenters horses on which to lay the dead pending funeral arrangements and identification A dozen mine rescue crews from all sections of western Pennsylvania worked in relays in the shaft The poisonous gases and thick damp were so dense that each shift could work only a short time before returning to the surface for air

Several times rescue workers men upon remaining in the mine until they had gained appreciable ground in the c s march toward the tomb of the ill fated workers collapsed Four rescue workers were so completely fatigued that after reviving them at the mine mouth it was necessary to rush them to hospitals for further treatment

Crowd Gathers

Shortly after daybreak another large crowd assembled on the hill overlooking the entrance to the mine A detachment of state troopers from the Greensburg barracks was kept on duty to hold back the ever increasing throngs

The police roped off an area around the mouth of the mine and only rescue workers and newspapermen were permitted inside the line

For the most part relatives of the miners who have not been accounted for deserted the mine and swarmed about the company machine shop where the bodies were removed begging to be permitted to view the unidentified dead in the belief that their kin might be among the latest group recovered

They were held back however by an iron fence extending entirely around the temporary morgue

Relatives will not be permitted to view the bodies until they have been prepared for burial by the undertakers

While the council committee has given the matter no definite consideration since passage of an ordinance authorizing a lease of quarters in the Eagles building on W Center st it appears certain that at least two offices now on the ground floor will be moved to the second floor Members of the committee favor placing the municipal court quarters on the second floor according to information coming from one of them today Investigation made in other cities where municipal courts operate showed the second floor arrangement to be in effect in practically all of these places Experience has shown this plan to be the most successful and most convenient for the public legal officials say

Members of the council building committee expect to meet in the near future to start work on the new office plans They hope to have all details agreed upon so that the changes and improvements on both first and second floors of the Eagles building can be completed before January 1 when the new municipal court will begin functioning

ASKS DONAHEY TO AID IN ISSUING FUNDS

Tracy Says Receipts Will Not Maintain Workable Balance for Road Work

Columbus Aug 27—With a view to preventing interruption of highway construction throughout Ohio State Auditor Joseph Tracy today asked Governor Vic Donahey to co-operate in an effort to insure funds with which to continue the work

Receipts will not maintain a workable balance in the state highway maintenance fund during the next three or four months Tracy wrote in a letter addressed to the governor Tracy told Donahey that at the close of business Thursday this fund had been overdrawn $1 252

Apparently the only way for relief is through the transfer from the state maintenance and repair fund now containing a balance of over $5 000 000 to which receipts will accrue in considerable amounts from the state gasoline tax and motor vehicle license receipts said Tracy

Unless you can offer a better method of relief I shall order my accounting staff to make a temporary transfer of $1 000 000 as of Aug 2 from the state maintenance and repair fund to the highway maintenance fund Tracy told the governor

The management of the Sesqui-Centennial exposition probably gets little satisfaction from realizing that a satisfied customer is the most effective source of advertising.

Modern hard-surfaced highways are a great boon to automobile drivers as long as they can manage to be thrown into the ditch instead of on the paving.

The reservoir which supplies the city of New York is running low and a water shortage is threatened but Broadway is probably less concerned over this announcement than it was over the curfew order which shut off the liquor supply at 2 o'clock each morning.

Religion Past and Present.

The Presbyterian church at Mt. Gilead, meeting place of one of the oldest and most notable religious organizations in Central Ohio, is to be rededicated at special services to take place Sunday. We read with interest a brief review of the history of this church in a recent issue of the Star. It told of how the Rev. Henry Shedd, sturdy Gospel pioneer, preached to his flock in the forest near Mt. Gilead, this natural setting being the first gathering place of the devout worshipers who were charter members of the organization now planning for a special program in its attractive and comfortable edifice.

That was ninety-five years ago. In those days religion was more of a ruling force than it is in these modern times. The pioneers lived close to nature and spent most of their time in the open spaces tilling the soil or in the midst of the woods felling timber for fuel or for the construction of log houses. All about them was God's handiwork, most of it untouched and unscathed by the hand of men, so that the entire scene was certain to inspire and elevate.

Possibly it was easier to be religious then than it is in these times with so many attractions and temptations to divert the mind from church affairs and worship. Then, however, there were no warm, well-lighted church buildings with comfortable seats and other accomodations and conveniences to invite attendance at services. To hear Rev. Shedd preach and to be present to join in the song and prayer services, many of those early Presbyterians travelled miles through wild territory that was frequently unmarked by paths.

It is different nowadays. There are fine streets and highways over which we may travel to the church portals and there are soft-seated automobiles which can be used to convey us there quickly while we sit back and rest from the toil and worries of the week. But most of us have the autos headed in a direction opposite from that leading to the church. The golf course, picnic grounds, ball games and other attractions keep down church attendance now and possibly might have done the same thing had they been in existence in the pioneer days. It is probably fortunate for the world today that the old timers didn't have many forms of amusement and festivities to beguile them. Otherwise we might not have some of the splendid old church organizations that they launched and which are still bravely striving to conquer sin in the face of modern competition.

A Dependable Resource.

The news that there are prospects of the great marsh land area near Kenton being converted into celery raising territory is important and interesting. Should this proposed development of that territory be carried through on an extensive scale the agricultural wealth of Central Ohio is likely to be greatly increased, for celery is one of the most profitable of products. The marsh land, used many years for onion growing, has yielded large profits in some seasons but has rewarded the owners with losses at other times. Production of celery, it is believed, would be more dependable and less liable to be seriously affected by unfavorable weather conditions. The outlook is one that is extremely encouraging not only to the people owning and controlling the marsh section, but to all business interests in the surrounding territory.

Agriculture is, after all, the most valuable asset that any community can have. This has frequently been proven in Marion county and other counties in this part of Ohio noted for its rich and productive soil. We can recall at least one period of industrial stringency, a number of years ago, when other localities where business concerns were almost entirely dependent upon factory operations for support were extremely hard hit. But while these places were in a state of trade and business depression, Marion's merchants were enjoying fair patronage chiefly because it was a good year for the farmers. Crops were bountiful and it was this resource which made Marion county and probably all others in this agricultural section stand out as bright spots in a nation of business gloom.

Any development which improves the farming resources of the counties to the west of Marion is to be joyously welcomed by all citizens. They should take that attitude because of the fact that the farming industry can usually be depended upon as a valuable and resource not only in good times, but when the cycle of prosperity moves downward.

Lined Up for Battle.

Whether party platforms mean anything or not depends almost entirely upon the ability, sincerity and integrity of the officials elected. Voters are coming more and more to the tendency of ranking candidates first in the scale of importance and platforms second. That is the proper order, beyond doubt, for unless officers are filled with high standard public servants who will strive at all times to administer affairs for the best interests of the commonwealth, pre-election promises and declarations of principle are of little if any significance.

Party platforms are necessary, however, as the basis of campaigning and as a guide for the voters. It is essential that the people know how candidates stand on issues of vital importance, for though an aspirant for office may be absolutely honest and thoroughly competent, his views on how the public's business should be handled may not coincide with the views of those whose votes he solicits.

Both Democratic and Republican organizations in Ohio have adopted and announced their platforms, and with nominees for offices friendly chosen, the preliminary battle lines are now drawn for the fall warfare.

A peculiar feature of the situation, as outlined in the platforms, is that each party seeks to place the other on the defensive. This results in a large measure, probably from the fact that there is divided control in state affairs, with the Democrats ruling the executive branch and Republicans holding sway in the legislature. As a consequence of this situation, the Democratic platform assails the Republican legislators for refusal to confirm Governor Donahey's appointments to the state tax and public utilities commissions, at the same time criticising those two official bodies for alleged failure to handle their affairs in a manner conducive to the general welfare.

The Democrats seek to link the Cooper candidacy with the administration and political power of former Governor Davis, with the obvious intention of adding to the necessity of Cooper's carrying on a defensive campaign. This strategy is likely to prove ineffective, however, unless the Democrats have convincing proof that Davis strings are actually attached to the Republican nominee.

It is difficult to see how the Republicans can be forced into fighting on the defensive as far as the gubernatorial race is concerned. If the Democratic managers succeed in bringing about a situation of that sort they will accomplish something rarely achieved in the political arena, where the party in power is almost invariably the one which must face attack and criticism.

The Republicans apparently are not concerned over that phase of the campaign battle plans, for their platform indicates that they propose to use all of the ammunition that can be gathered against the Donahey administration. This is indicated in the plank pledging a policy of economy, forecasting a charge of extravagance against the party in power. Promises of a "clean-up" in the state fair and welfare departments, officials of which were under fire recently, also presage campaign attacks that the governor and his supporters must combat.

On the other hand, the Republicans must defend their legislative record and may rest assured that the opposition party will find openings there for their heavy artillery.

The Democrats are deserving of commendation for clearly stating their views on the question of abolishing the primary. They unequivocally advocate retaining the present system of making nominations and while that stand is not in accord with the views of this newspaper, we do not hesitate in praising the Democratic convention delegates for their expression of frankness and courage.

The primary issue was evaded by the Republican convention, although leaders of that party have been among the strongest advocates of the move to abolish the present system and were, in fact, among the first proponents of a change. The platform plank referring to this subject pledges the party candidates, if elected, to carry out the mandate of the amendment if adopted by the voters in November. The pledge is unimportant and this feature of the platform might, as well have been entirely omitted. The Republican convention should, in our opinion, have expressed itself plainly in favor of adopting the primary Amendment proposal. Certainly nothing was gained by evasion, since the opposing party is in position to show that Republican leaders generally are strongly opposed to continuance of the present system.

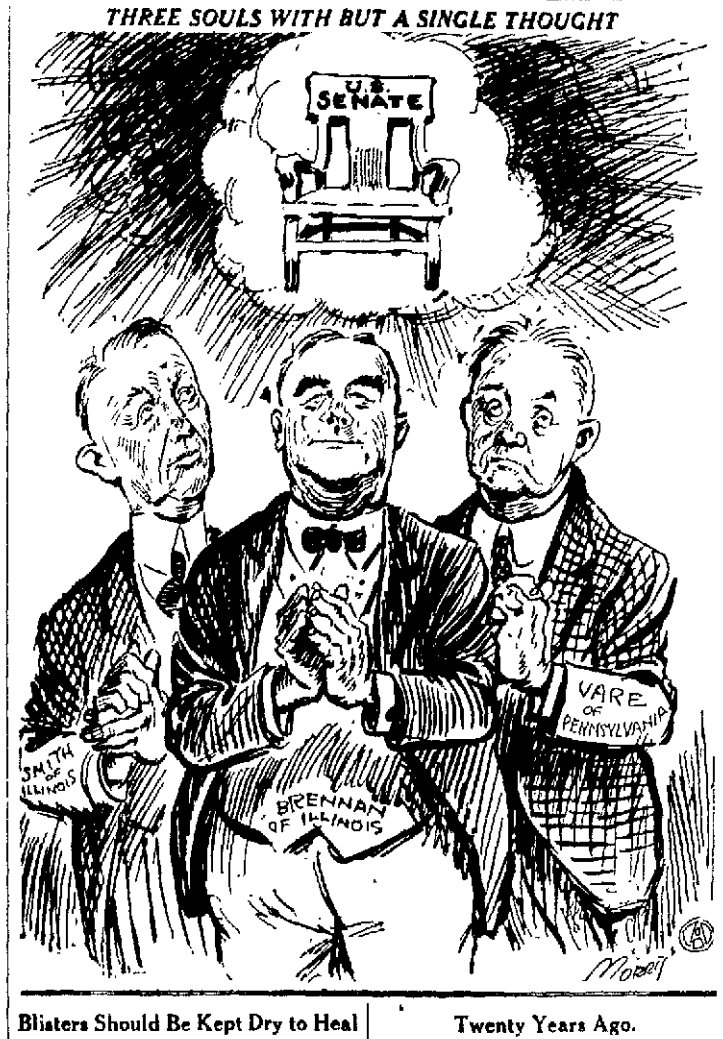
Both parties express themselves as favorable to rigid law enforcement, a stand which they can take without fear of losing votes excepting possibly in bootlegging circles and other groups which thrive upon illicit transactions. There are other declarations of policy and principle likely to figure but slightly in the coming campaign, which promises to be one of unusual activity and militancy and from which the general public should be able to derive no small measure of entertainment and profit. We use the word profit because the public almost invariably benefits when its governmental affairs are brought out in the forum of a spirited political campaign for an open and searching discussion.

Canon Chase, president of the New York Civic league, blames the movies for prevalence of crime and it is probably true that quite a few actors and producers should be jailed for taking money under false pretenses.

Mr. Sheffield wants to resign his place as ambassador to Mexico and in all likelihood Washington is not going to be overcrowded with applicants clamoring for the job right at this time.

Rev. Homer W. Tope, Pennsylvania State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league declares that Governor Al Smith, of New York, could not carry the southern states if he should be nominated for the presidency. He says that sentiment in the south is for our own chief executive, Vic Donahey, which would be very gratifying news to Ohioans were it not for the fact that Vic has announced, decisively and irrevocably, of course, that he is not a candidate for White House occupancy.

THREE SOULS WITH BUT A SINGLE THOUGHT



Blisters Should Be Kept Dry to Heal

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

One of the common things in life is to acquire a blister or a series of them. Unless they become infected they are not serious, but it may not be amiss to tell you something in detail about blisters and their treatment.

A few days ago I wrote you an article about "shingles" or "herpes." I said then that this is not a serious disease except in feeble old people. Little blisters appear on the skin in this disease, and the chief thing to do in the treatment of herpes is to avoid scarring. Little trouble need be expected in shingles if the blisters are small in size and numbers.

The blisters which appear in herpes are different from ordinary blisters in that the underlying skin participates in the disease. Because the local resistance is lowered is the reason why large blisters in herpes are liable to become infected. In this event there may be left unpleasant reminders—a scar marking the location of each vesicle or blister.

There are a lot of causes for blisters besides a disease like herpes. New shoes or poorly fitting shoes will irritate the skin so that blisters form. One of the reasons why tight shoes or shoes of stiff and unyielding leather are harmful to the feet, is because the rubbing of the skin may produce serious irritation and blisters.

Changing from low to high or from high to low shoes may cause irritation where the top of the shoe rubs an unaccustomed part of the skin. Blisters form sometimes between the toes.

It may be that the dye of the stockings or the chemicals which are used in preparing the leather may have some effect on the skin. It must be remembered, too, that short, tight stockings are just as bad as too-tight shoes.

Anything which produces excessive sweating of the feet will soften the skin. Blisters may be one result of this irritation.

In treating blisters which come from any cause, whether from herpes or from abuse of the feet, the treatment is practically the same. The important things is to keep the affected parts as dry as possible. This means that the stockings must be changed frequently. It means that water and moist preparations should be avoided.

If the blisters form on the body or shoulders or any other place where rubbing of the clothing is apt to irritate them, there should be some means of protection. A thick and wide layer of cotton may be dropped over the part to keep it from rubbing.

If a large blister forms somewhere it will give less trouble if you extract the water from it. Your hands should be washed so that they are perfectly clean, and likewise the affected part of the skin should be thoroughly clean. Then you may sterilize the point of a needle by passing it through the flame of a match and wiping it on a piece of sterile cotton. With this the blister may be carefully opened at its edge. The fluid is pressed out and pains are taken not to break or tear the skin. The thin covering acts as a protection to the underlying tissues. A thin layer of gauze is placed over this and strapped in place with adhesive plaster. By reasonable care the blisters will disappear in a few days and you will be quite as well as ever. Don't pick or fuss with the blister. Cover it up to protect it from your own hands as well as from the irritation of the clothing. —Copyright, 1926.

Preparedness in Japan.

[Chicago Tribune.]

While our pacifists are organizing their drive against military training, or to use their term, "militarism in education," we might consider the new Japanese system under the direction of the department of education.

The law recently passed provides for compulsory military instruction in middle schools and universities, and for voluntary training for the elementary schools. The war department and department of education collaborate on the curriculum, and there are 1,765 schools in which the compulsory training is given. This amount to two or three hours a week for the secondary schools and an hour and a half for the higher, with four to six days each year for field training. This is not a very heavy burden on "militarism" to put on the Japanese youth, of which there are now about 175,000 undergoing this training.

General training for the large class who do not reach the secondary schools will consist of 500 hours during four years, to be divided as follows: Ethics and citizenship, 100 hours; elementary education, 200 hours; business training, 100 hours; military drill, 400 hours. It is asserted that 2,000,000 youths now receive military training in some form.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Speaking of the French debt to the United States the Yankee tourists will pay it in full if they are well treated.

The world is thrill-proof as far as revolutions are concerned. Governments overturned in Europe make little more than a fading ripple in America. There is a revolution now and then, that excites millions—millions of women. There is one just announced from Paris. It appears that fashionable folk have revolted against the rule of dressmakers. The newest fashion exhibits include everything imaginable in the way of color and line. Now that's a revolution that is at least interesting whether important or not.

Keep your eye on that nation in which education is made easy to get. Its people will grow. They may be short on money, but they will be long on brains. In the end brains will triumph. In France it is possible to attend a lecture at the University of Paris for four cents. Lectures are delivered by professors bearing names famous in science art history and literature. It is a wise community which exposes the largest possible number of men and women, boys and girls, to the sources of education.

Here is a remark to startle the world—if the young man means it. Youthful Mr. Krupp, only son of the head of the Krupp gun plant in Germany, has finished his second year at Harvard. He says:

"When I assume control of the Krupp plant we won't make guns, for I don't believe in war."

For a few professional pacifists of the parlor type not to believe in war means little. When Krupp says, "I don't believe in war," it may mean much.

If the Morgans and some other New York bankers decided that they didn't believe in war any more it would mean more. Europe, unable to finance wars, will have to do without them.

Take off your hat to "Brownie," the wonder cow from Maine. Brownie's claim to distinction is that she produced 15,866 quarts of milk in two years. Not all the useful producers of this world can either write or talk or make bricks.

People always handled by force come finally to rebel against it. There is something in the human spirit that cries for justice, if not kindness. The trouble with China today is largely that Chinamen have so long been handled by force. What China needs is a policy of justice.

There are too many tourists who go to Europe to see things and not enough who go to Europe to think about things. Too bad traveling can't be restricted for awhile to people who can go abroad, interpret what they see, and bring back an idea. The rest had better be at home.

What makes games worth while? One can get plenty of exercise without games. The spirit of the game is the thing. If games do not do something for the mind and heart—for the spirit—they are rarely worth the time.

Susanne Lenglen, French tennis player, says well when she says:

"To win cheerfully, to lose as cheerfully, to accept every decision no matter what one may think—in short, to play in the spirit of this great game of ours—that is what makes lawn tennis worth while."

Poems That Live.

"THE SHANDON BELLS."

With deep affection,
And recollection,
I often think of
Those Shandon bells,
Whose sounds so wild would,
In the days of childhood,
Fling round my cradle
Their magic spells.
On this I ponder
Where'er I wander,
And thus grow fonder,
Sweet Cork, of thee;
With thy bells of Shandon,
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the River Lee.

I've heard bells chiming
Full many a clime in,
Tolling sublime in
Cathedral shrine,
While at a glib rate
Brass tongues would vibrate—
But all their music
Spoke naught like thine;
For memory, dwelling
On each proud swelling
Of the belfry knelling
Its bold notes free,
Made the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the River Lee.

There's a bell in Moscow,
While on tower and kiosk,
In Saint Sophia
The Turkman gets;
And loud in air
Calls men to prayer
From the tapering summit
Of tall minarets.
Such empty phantom
I freely grant them:
But there is an anthem
More dear to me—
'Tis the bells of Shandon
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the River Lee.

Q. Why aren't pears grown in greater quantities? C. R.

A. The pear is a delicious fruit and yields enormous crops when bearing. A large acreage would be planted were it not for pear blight. This disease makes a crop so uncertain that farmers will not take the chances. The pear would rival the apple in production and probably outyield this fruit were it possible to control the blight.

A. On September 14, 1777, congress ordered the bells of Philadelphia to be taken down and conveyed to a place of safety to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy. On September 24, the state house bell was hauled by John Jacob Michley to Bethlehem, and thence to Allentown by Frederick Lenser. It was secreted under the floor of the stone building erected by the Zion Reform congregation in 1771. Historians have differed regarding the place of concealment. Trenton, Bethlehem, and Lancaster have been mentioned. The train went by way of Trenton to Bethlehem, but the honor of sheltering the bell belongs wholly to Allentown, where it reposed until the evacuation of Philadelphia by the British. A tablet was erected on the Zion Reform church in memory of this event, October 15, 1908.

There are said to be 25,000 aspirants for film fame in the greater city. These figures are gathered from agency lists of applications. It is not only the collar-ad boys and comely flappers who desire screen careers but grandmothers, retired colonels, a few business men and even babies.

The chance of a newcomer springing into instant fame—as often happens—is the last. No count is taken of those who have hadewed the path with sweat and often blood. The fate of so many film stars has been so tragic that one often wonders at the feverish urge.

A film magnate has observed that only one out of 1,000,000 stands even a slight chance of sudden success and even for those with ability and experience no profession offers such little room at the top.

Who's Who and Why.

GENERAL GEORGE CONDYLIS.

The popular hero of the moment in Greece is General George Condylis, whose recent coup in overthrowing the dictator, General Pangalos, surprised the world at large by its suddenness.

Two years ago when the Greek parliament declined to hand the reins of government over to General Condylis he said that he would never attempt a coup de force, but even at that time a considerable proportion of the Greek population believed that before long he would be in control of the republic.

Many thousands of Greeks looked upon Condylis as the strongest man in the republic. He is described as being hard and relentless, trained in the ways of the soldier and possessing an abrupt manner, powerful perseverance and much self confidence.

At the beginning of the first Balkan war he was a corporal. He fought through both Balkan Wars, in Macedonia during the World war and then in Anatolia, rising to the rank of colonel. He was one of those who, in 1916, assisted Venizelos in setting up a revolutionary government at Salonika, and when King Constantine returned to Greece late in 1920 Condylis went to Constantinople with other dissatisfied officers. When Constantine was again dethroned two years later Condylis returned to the army, but during the Lausanne treaty negotiations he resigned to become a deputy in parliament and to fight for the republican cause.

In April, 1924, he was appointed minister of war by Prime Minister Papanastasiou. Four months afterwards he resigned his portfolio when the prime minister received a delegation of soldiers and sailors whom Condylis strongly considered to be mutineers. His resignation precipitated the fall of the Papanastasiou government and later Condylis was exiled with a number of politicians who were accused of sedition.

On the occasion of General Pangalos becoming president in April of this year, General Condylis and other exiles were permitted to return to Greece.

The worst joke I heard today was told to me by Professor Glenn Frank, head of Wisconsin university. He is running that great big school and making a big hit with it. Well, I had always wanted to meet him, and the other night I run on to him here in London. We were at the same hotel. He and his charming wife are touring Europe. He has promised to come to my lecture in Madison next year and that will insure me of double last year's attendance. He had just come from hearing Bernard Shaw speak at his seventieth birthday, a treat I would have given anything to have enjoyed, for that Shaw is a hear. He has kept England looking under the bed every night for years and years. This Frank guy is pretty funny himself for a professor. You know you get one of those professor cuts away from their campus and they are just dumb as human. He had a wheeze for me. The Stockholmers had a terrible time getting in to see a cricket match. In fact, one of them left his trousers on the barbed wire. Not bad at all for a serious minded professor. It's about the shortest thing a professor ever told. —Copyright, 1926.

Galsworthy has a se re charm which he brings into play in all his pupils The Silver Spoon shows the ess of a young girl to fit herself into surroundings even to a greater degree than Galsworthy has previously attempted This book of so wholesome a nature that it will be of interest to a great many

In the first place it does not lack an exciting political issue, one the ram ifications and bias, but dwelling so little it contains the most popular social issue to a marked degree and by not dwelling from less it remains hardly a development, a personnel of truly real persons three characterizes of a good author which Galsworthy has woven into one

Another Galsworthy trick as the creation of characters which with the reading of one Galsworthy book one learn to love and then after lovers of Galsworthy people have also tired of ever hearing more of them another Galsworthy novel is created with those same Galsworthy people prominent as ever

"THE Silver Spoon deals with a contrast of two women each with enough faults to make her human Their virtues and vices do not correspond one with the other and an exciting contest between the two ensues terminates in a trial The one Marjorie Herrar is of the type which takes life at its worth lives as she chooses life at its worth lives as she chooses quarrels into the book and as quietly emulsifies them out again

When reading a Galsworthy book one becomes so completely engrossed that as the end of the book draws near one shamelessly runs an impulsive finger across the remainder of that page to know the rest of the book reading with a sigh the end of a book so interesting And yet that same impulsive thumb may feel the lingering thickness with still another thought in mind and that, Oh what might the ending be

Edna Ferber's new novel has the interesting title Show Boat Although the Page 9 ad shows boat it is necessary to explain that the theater an institution that has flourished on the Mississippi and its tributaries from the close of the Civil War to the present About this institution Miss Ferber has built a romance that has all the popular appeal of So Big Indeed the underlying theme is like those of So Big that of women's ideas about Miss Ferber's novels

Original or not the fact remains that she can write a good story and it is also true that the strange and sphinx that she has stirred to life is almost to give the story a national importance The central character is a dress of questionable high taste Her father is a little excitable man of highly volatile temperament with a frustrated ness theatrical urge Her mother is a stern censorious disciplinarian a matter fact monster bred in New England and doomed to spend her life among actors and actresses most of whom may be accurately described as The daughter of these is named Magnolia Her story is the story of the book

The secondary characters of greatest importance is the daughter of Magnolia Kim who falls to the heritage deserted by her strain derived from her father the black sheep of the family Southern family who becomes an actor while down on his luck but whose real vocation is that of a gambler Kim begins life on a show boat and sometimes it as the daughter of a gambler In the old wide open Chicago This circumstance gives Miss Ferber a chance to indulge her passion for gambling You will recall that So Big opens with the accidental shooting of the father of the protagonist and he is a gambler This incident is referred to in Show Boat

Kim is educated in a convent The father deserts his family when Chicago is cleaned up and he can no longer make a living The mother becomes a celebrated performer Eventually Kim becomes an even more splendid actress on the New York stage and pals around with such blazing figures as Alexander Woollcott and Frank Crowninshield The story closes with a romantic return of Magnolia to the show boat on the death of her amazing mother

Show Boat has all the appeal of a merciless or genuine of So Big I can't see that it is better or worse Miss Ferber always manages to tell a colorful story But that is all one should look for in her books—Reviewed by C Hartley Grattan in The Fourth Estate)

One of the most remarkable inventions in the service of humanity stands to the credit of Miss Iza Thompson, an instructor in a school for the deaf in London. Known as the Thompson Sensitive Flame, it is a beacon of hope to the deaf. An ordinary gas flame, regulated so that it vibrates to every sound, it overcomes the hitherto insuperable difficulty of teaching word-sounds to the deaf-mute. By means of the vibrations of the flame he is trained to remember the particular sounds in the alphbet, and the sequence necessary for the production of words.

...flood lights revealed a spacious pool with a stage at the far banks With the exception ... the grounds which has probably served down in real traces of the Indian days as well as be responsible to of these times Rising to forty feet fully 150 feet above the ground in perfect symmetry its limbs and foliage a dense rich green this tree was to the striking figure of the entire stage

With a burst of music from the Band concealed in a thicket of leaves ...ian foliage the curtain parted and Miss Helen Walker as Miss Upper Sandusky came to the first stage ... followed by Miss Columbia and the forty eight states in gorgeous array Amplifiers over the grounds made it possible for every one to hear her address of welcome to the citizens of the community and to the states

Father Time depicted by Mrs S R Dunham announced each episode His flowing white robes thin streaming locks and stern presence made him a typical figure of this well known old fellow

One of the prettiest episodes was the coming of the Red Man to the setting up of the Indian tepees the camp fires around which the band of Indians existed their ceremonials and dances The lights were turned off on this scene leaving the red glow of the camp fires around which the Indians in their colorful dress made a striking picture

With the coming of the white man an exact replica of the old Indian hall and the first school were erected as a portrayal of the days of 1850 when the Indian scenes was established at Upper Sandusky in charge of William Walker As the Indians were marched given to lettering drunkenness quarreling and fighting in the days a jail was the first thing needed to maintain order

The same fall the missionary John Stewart came and accomplished miracles among the Red Men who learned to love the Pale Faces God Such was the wonderful success of the ... and Miss Mission ... ing was erected in 1824 on land allowed by the government ... the structure were torn down in 1843 but was rebuilt in 1853 It stands now in Old Mission Cemetery here a landmark and reminder of the Red Man Around it are the graves of many old Indians above the graves tombstones have recently been erected

Soon the Conestoga wagon rumbled across the stage depositing Chief Tarkenton's wife as overnight guests of the Indian Village For their entertainment a Virginia reel was charmingly danced

The next episodes shows the treaty with the Indians made with Col Johnson and it is decided that the Indians must go

Sorrowful as their leaving was this scene was by far the most interesting and amusing Before the departure all the car load household tasks were performed displaying the primitive methods used by our forefathers and the Indians for the accomplishing of daily tasks

The closing scene was indeed a spectacle with many of the natives of the earth coming in review and going through their native dances The entire ensemble numbers 300 decked in perfect format on which the band played the national airs of the countries The lights were drawn with the audience standing at salute while the Star Spangled Banner was played

Priest Dares Poisonous Gases of Mine to Administer Last Rites to Victims

At the Mouth of Clymer Mine

N J Clymer Pa Aug 27 — The job at the right mouth of the right when 1000 anxious relatives and friends awaited some hopeful word from within the wrecked mine where 86 men were dying as awful hours crept by, and long past the hour figures stood out from all rest

That figure was Rev Father F X Koelzer of St Anthony's Church at Clymer where most of the ill-fated miners worshipped Straight the bitterly brave of the priest

Father Koelzer who was to be carried, when an explosion of deadly smoke belched forth from the mouth of the mine, warning of the tragedy that had taken place in the workings, the first persons to arrive at the mine

Faces Deadly Gases

Although Father Koelzer was much Father Koelzer insisted upon entering the mine in the first car to leave after the explosion to administer the rites of his church to the victims

When the mine car had penetrated as far as its crew dared in face of the poisonous gases the church priest left the car and fought his way back into the danger zone where he saw the bodies of four miners

Fearing that the priest would be overcome by the deadly gas the miners in the first rescue car attempted to drag him bodily to safety but their efforts were futile until he had attended the ill-fated men Father Koelzer was so nearly exhausted when he finally reached the surface that next aid crew worked over him for several minutes before he regained his faculties

Identifies Dead

Then when rescue crews finally pushed their way back into the shaft to where the victims bodies were recovered it was Father Koelzer who because of his acquaintance with most of the victims was called upon to take charge of the task of identifying them

Although he found no time for sleep during the night Father Koelzer carried on the heroic work, the news as gentle as possible to the miners families and comforting them in their hour of sorrow

RESERVE BANKS YEARLY HANDLE 12 BILLIONS

Huge Volume of Money Gets Average Turnover Every Five Months

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—More than $12,000,000,000 passes over the counters of the Federal Reserve Banks every year, according to a statement issued here today.

The huge volume of money in circulation has an average turnover through the banks of once in every five months, the amount handled every business day is about two and one-half times the average circulation in use.

Among the services performed by the Federal Reserve System the supplying of the country in accordance with needs is one of the most important. An official statement of the system says:

"There are the 12 reserve bank with their branches, three agencies and numerous depots that the banks may apply for additional currency when a demand for it reaches them from their customers. It is to enable banks with their subsidiaries that the currency is returned when the amount in circulation exceeds the demand.

Old Money Exchanged

"Worn out and unfit currency of all kinds for the most part presented to the reserve bank and there exchanged and clean notes for it, supplying currency to the community the banks act not only in their capacity as note issuing institutions but as fiscal agents for the United States are performing the functions which executives whose place they are taken.

"Under the federal reserve act cash in the vaults of member banks does not count as reserve and the entire legal reserves required against the deposits are carried as balances at the reserve banks.

"Since commercial banks as profit making institutions do not as a rule keep any considerable volume of their funds unnecessarily unproductive the practice of member banks to carry only their own vaults only such amounts of currency as is required to meet the needs of the customers," the statement said.

"Any surplus above this amount is sent to the reserve banks to be credited to the members reserve account. When on the other hand the demand for currency at the member banks increases the reserves in their vaults is reduced by drawing on the part of customers. The receipt of such deposits the member banks apply to the reserve banks for checks to be charged against their reserve balance.

"Under existing conditions it was expected the general public like the member banks keep on hand only such amount of cash as is needed for pocket money and pay roll requirements. With the growth of the banking habit and of the custom of payment by check for the greater part of purchases and with the falling off of currency not prevalent in many countries all cash in the hands of the public in excess of immediate needs is deposited with the banks.

Act Like Bunch of Freshmen When at Leisure

NEW YORK Aug 27 — Professional players have to be serious only about three hours per day and plenty of leisure thus combined with youth makes them as carefree as a bunch of college freshmen

A favorite diversion of the players is dropping a bag filled with water from the fourth or fifth story of a hotel on the unsuspecting head of a fellow players or others

Sherwood Magee pulled that one on Babe Ruth of the Reds several years ago and it took five minutes to get Big Bambino straw hat off his ears

Movies are International Art for Bringing Foreign Revenue in Large Amounts

Movie Director Reports That Large Per Cent of Receipts for Motion Pictures in This Country Are Annually Coming from Other Nations

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 27—Motion picture [illegible] form of [illegible] Lasky, first vice president [illegible] Players-Lasky corporation, [illegible] body.

"[illegible] be excited when the [illegible] national an American [illegible] days she was [illegible] them, although America [illegible] foreign consumer.

"During the past two years we have felt the definite pressure of the foreign market [illegible] motion pictures. Lasky [illegible] last year Paramount received [illegible] per cent of its revenue from foreign countries. We expect 35 per cent this year and I predict that with the growth in the popularity of motion pictures, particularly American pictures, in all parts of the globe we will be receiving the major portion of our revenue from countries outside America within the next two years. Foreign expansion has no limit."

This situation, according to Lasky, is a good thing for the motion picture business as it tends to perpetuate strength of story and to eliminate an appeal to provincialism.

"We must now make pictures for the world," he affirmed. "They must be strong in theme, and strong in plot. They must speak a language which men and women understand from Perth to Singapore from Moscow, Idaho, to Moscow, Russia."

Strength of theme and story means better pictures. Today we are looking only to the stars, and the means of its doing. Truth is the uppermost thing in our minds. We want to picture life as it is, we want to appeal to the best [illegible] which are the same the world over. True art has always a universal appeal.

The international situation is also free of us from the petty interference of censorship boards in some states—boards that are nothing more than silly in their work.

"One of the best pictures we made in the good old days," concluded Lasky with a smile, "was 'Hawthorne of the U. S. A.' with Wallace Reid as the star. Today we couldn't begin to sell it under that title. National appeal is gone in motion pictures."

A country where bobbed hair appears to be unknown, and where silk stockings practically do not exist is the impression received by recent visitors to Saxony.

ARREST MAN AND WIFE FOR PETTING

Married Couple Caught Spooning In Auto on Highway; Judge Puzzled

Cleveland, Aug. 27—Municipal Judge Tom Green has under advisement the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mack, 22 and 23 years old respectively, which involves the momentous question of whether man and wife may in this free United States spoon in an automobile upon a public highway.

The couple were arrested by Sgt. Arthur Bolp and Patrolman Clayton Benesch. The officers alleged they caught the defendants spooning in a car on West 25th Street.

"But we're married, your Honor," the defendants declared in pleading not guilty.

"Humph!—" said his Honor, "I want to think about this a little. It seems to me that a man and wife ought not to be disturbed."

ASHEVILLE TO BE SCENE OF FIGHT ON BLUE LAWS

Test Case for Sunday Baseball and Movies Will Be Made

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 27—Exponents of liberal thought and entertainment soon will lock horns in the mountains of North Carolina in what is foreshadowed as one of the greatest legal skirmishes ever to take place between two groups of extremists.

Asheville, North Carolina's mountain resort city, has been selected by the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws as the city in which the test case for Sunday baseball and movies will be made.

Jno. A. E. Gay, secretary treasurer of the association and Henry Flury of Washington, D. C., announced on their arrival here plans for bringing the case into the courts in an effort to banish the Blue law hold on the state.

As soon as preparations can be made, they declared either a baseball game or a movie will be held on Sunday. Then they said, the national association will be ready to aid them in the trial they anticipate will ensue.

Brawn needs the body-building elements of good malt and finds them most desirably provided in Buckeye

Laborers and lawyers, mechanics and merchants, men of every occupation and station have united in making Buckeye the leading brand. Most men prefer its flavor and quality. By actual laboratory tests, it has been proved that the 2½-pound can of Buckeye is to be preferred to 3-pound cans of ordinary malt.

PLANS CATACOMBS TO ENLARGE LIBRARY

London Aug 27 —The famous Bodleian Library at Oxford which is growing at the rate of 25,000 volumes a year and which now contains 1,700,000 volumes will have reached its limit in a decade according to Sir Michael Sadler, master of University College

Sadler has drawn up a number of plans for enlargement, one of which provides for the construction of miles of catacombs underneath the main building for the housing of thousands upon thousands of books which the library will have to find space for during the coming years A plan is also being discussed to afford for the building of an entirely new library, at a cost of nearly $4,000,000

The first library at Oxford was founded in 1320 and the present Bodleian library in 1598 Like the British Museum, the Bodleian is entitled to claim a copy of every book published in England

Some Marion Residents Find Picnics and Outings Far from Entertaining

BY MARION CITIZEN

PICNICS and family outings are not always what they are cracked up to be, some Marion residents find

The affairs are all right in one way of speaking, but their place is not always in the shady nook near the babbling brook nor any place in the great outdoors where men are claimed to be nothing else than men

Take for example, one family preparing to go on a so called picnic, which our Mr Webster declares as an easy or pleasant time and experience

For folks a day and sometimes two days ahead of the appointed time for the picnic all of the lady of the family, who as a general rule has a full time work schedule in her home, is busy making ready for the meal for that day The routine housework then begins to pile up and maybe one or two of the regular meals are missed or scantily prepared.

Borrows Fishing Rod

The husband, too, has difficulty in finding his fishing rod and often is compelled to buy a new one or borrow from a neighbor The auto must also be oiled and greased and tires repaired

The kids are happy and carefree and go without food a meal or two previous in order to do justice to the picnic dinner

All predict a howling success as they pile out of the car and skip over the hill to "neath trees along the river spot" And according to predictions the event does start with a howl as the smallest of three children becomes overbalanced and falls into the river, storms, the first mishap.

After a little trouble with a stray cow who tries ardently to break up the meal by rooting through the basket for an apple, the dinner starts

About the same time, seemingly all the bugs of Jugdom are present to take part in that glorious meal A World Court of bugs, flies and ants appears to be in session and begin calling the roll before the family gets set for action on the potato chips

Back to Normal

The happiness that is witnessed in a home without a mother in law is the bliss that might be obtained at a picnic where bugs and flies are not

The atmosphere of the picnic gets back to normal again when the family gets used to the bestial, thousand legged and ants Everything runs smoothly until the big sister of the two smaller children finds out only too late that the fly she tried to crush on her chick was a bee The misapprehension results in another "haul up"

At this interval husband and wife have a friendly quarrel which ends in a draw when both decide it is time to return home On rising from his seat on the ground the former, ever observant, notices that the party has been held amid a fine species of poison ivy creating a happy outlook for the future

Leaving perhaps an hour look up for the place where the car was left, the entire family starts and after a small amount of fire trouble and a short walk for some gasoline, they reach home with a common vow hovering in their minds

Lake boat picnics were at one time all the rage but they, too, have their dangers

As near as it can be determined about the only place to secure a happy time and keep away accidents is to hold the picnic in the city or the area of your own home

PRINCIPAL RAILS IN MOVE TO HIGH LEVELS

Stocks Stimulated by Unexpectedly Favorable July Earnings Reports

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks strong; industrial stocks irregular; domestic bonds dull; foreign bonds slightly lower; call money 5 per cent; grain irregular; copper steady; oil steady; cotton firm; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron steady; foreign exchange fairly steady.

New York, Aug. 27—Stimulated by the unexpectedly favorable display of July earnings reports by the principal railroad lines, the stocks of the transportation companies moved up to higher price levels today in a new wave of investment and speculative buying which made them the conspicuous section of the market.

Gains in both the gross and net incomes of the railroad systems for July were revealed by practically all of the important systems which have reported thus far this week. Atchison, which has already distinguished itself in the stock market, reported an increase of 24.3 per cent in gross income over the same period last year, this being the outstanding performance of the major carrier companies.

With the continuance of call money at 5 per cent, and the market being apparently unable to advance as a whole, the bears launched another attack against the industrial leaders shortly after the noon period. General Motors, steel and other active stocks declined a few points but no wide breaks occurred and most of the early losses were recovered.

Chesapeake & Ohio and other well known railroad shares advanced a point or more in active trading. Stocks of the tire and rubber companies, under the lead of U. S. Rubber sold upward in fairly active trading.

The oil, copper and equipment stocks were unusually inactive.

"CONGLOMERATION OF DRUGS" BLAMED

Miss Dorothy Kirk, loser, Emil Balanesco, confessed slayer.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—The death of Dorothy Kirk, 21 year old stenographer, resulted from taking a conglomeration of drugs, City Chemist Knapp stated in a report he filed on his examination of the girl's stomach.

Miss Kirk's mysterious death resulted in police questioning of Emil Balanesco, youthful medical student and alleged sweetheart of the girl who was said to have told authorities he advised her to take certain medicines. None of the various drugs could have caused death if taken separately, the city chemist stated although the mixture of drugs found in her stomach might have proved fatal.

ST. LOUIS FINALLY STARTS MEMORIAL

Construction of $15,000,000 Plaza Climaxes Years of Effort by Citizens

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—Climaxing years of effort by public spirited citizens, actual work on the first unit of St. Louis $15,000,000 Memorial Plaza has been started with the laying of the foundation of a new $1,000,000 court house which is planned to be the largest architectural structure of its kind in the country.

It is estimated that it will take at least five years to complete the building which when completed will reach the highest point of any in the city and will tower 380 feet skyward.

The edifice will harken back to the architectural structures of ancient Greece and Egypt. Seventy-eight fountains jets will be built to support the building.

Of Corinthian design with a tinge of Egyptian influence, and 1,100 feet long, it will contain the main temple of justice. It will consist of 13 stories, four of them will have partial mezzanine floors making, virtually, 17 stories. A replica of a Grecian temple topped with a Egyptian pyramid, will add to the height.

MOVING MASSES

When it comes to moving masses—to carrying whole cities to and from their work—electric vehicles—trains—interurbans—street cars—stand pre-eminent. The growth in the number of street car riders over recent years proves the truth of this statement. 1923 was the banner year for new automobile registrations in this country. Yet in that same year the street cars carried more people than ever before in the history of the country. In 1924 they handled within one per cent of the record figure of 1923.
